Miss Hazel L. Van Alstyne
Box 135
Napanea, Ont., Canada

Dear Miss Van Alstyne:

Thank you very much for your recent letter, giving me data on the Valier and Lasher families. I shall follow your suggestion about writing the Registry Office.

My understanding of my Ontario ancestry is as follows: Two brothers, Stotts Sager and John Sager (also Seager, Segar, etc.), together with other brothers and cousins of the name, were Loyalists ^{from Albany County, N.Y.} during the American Revolution. In 1783 and 1784 they migrated to Ontario and several of this name settled in the townships of Richmond, Tyendinaga and Sidney. Hannah Sager who married Frank Talman (in one account John Talman) was a sister of a later Stotts Sager and Nicholas Sager, daughter of a William Sager, and evidently a granddaughter of John, the Loyalist.

Frank (John) Talman is said to have been born in Woodstock, Ont., and was possibly a grandson of Thomas Tallman or Talman, a Baptist preacher, who settled there in the 1820's.

Henry Lasher came to Ontario from Germantown, N.Y. or nearby Kinderhook in the early 1800's and became a prosperous merchant at Bath, Ont., where his son John was a justice of peace. Other collateral Lashers came perhaps five or ten years after Henry and settled at Richmond. Elizabeth Ann (Betsy) Lasher may have been one of two known daughters of Henry or she may have come from one of the collateral branches. She married Peter Valier, ca. 1837.

Joseph Valière (also Vallier, Vallière, etc.), a cooper, settled in Kingston, Ont. around 1800 and married Mary Humphries in the Anglican Church there in 1803. Later Valière collaterals settled nearby. In 1851 there was a Mary Valyear, widow, in Lobborough Township; there was also a Vallier family in the same township. There was also a Valyear family in Dorland Twp., Frontenac West, as well as my own Valier family (later Valyear) at the village of Forest Mills in Richmond. The relationship of all these families has not been established.

The name "Van Alstine" appears as a witness ~~appears as a witness~~ on some of the early Sager marriage or baptismal records in Richmond Twp. I understand that Kimmerly, Smith, Pringle, Storm* and other early families of the region intermarried with the Sagers, whose line has been accepted for U.E.L. membership.

Again, many thanks.

Sincerely,

Howard T. Valyear

Dear Dr. Burleigh:

I am sending on to you a letter that I received and which I answered. Mr. Valyear had sent me a letter earlier but had not mentioned anything to help me in my search.

With this letter as a basis, I searched all through the registers of Rev. MacDowell and Rev. Langhorn - we have the material that Mr. Casey copied out by hand. I did find items on the families that he has mentioned in this letter, but do not know their connection with him. The name "Valier" is mentioned in an early Ontario directory, circa 1871, for the Forest Mills area. But I have exhausted our scanty source of material.

Of the Lasher name of family, I have no information at all. So I turn it over to you.

Yours truly,

Hazel L. Van Alstyne
